Transients : Causes, Effects and Solutions

Speaker: TBD, Innovative Technology – The featured speaker, still to be determined, will be one of Innovative Technology’s field support engineers responsible for customer and client education on transient surge phenomena, testing, standards and solutions.

Program Summary – Damaging transient voltage surges continues to be among the top power quality concerns of end users especially those that are dependent on the reliability of electrical and electronic equipment within their facilities and operations. Transient impulses and surges can result in corrupted or lost data, erratic equipment behavior or mis-operation, and catastrophic equipment failure. Adequately protecting a facility against the damaging effects of transient voltages requires knowledge and understanding about the transient environment, industry standards, proper application and installation techniques, knowledge about conducting system surveys, comparing product specifications and developing sound bid specifications, and evaluating the performance of protection and mitigation solutions.

The program will help attendees in gaining a better handle on many of these complex considerations. Meeting attendees will also observe the actual testing of various surge protection devices using IEEE standard testing procedures and standardized surge testing equipment. The presenter will also discuss how actual device performance can be affected by application and installation factors. The applicability and criteria covered by UL and IEEE standards used in the transient voltage suppression industry will be amply reviewed and discussed.

This meeting has been designated a Membership Appreciation Meeting with a special reduced meeting registration fee for 2002 registered members of only $15.00. So if you have not been able to attend lately due to other commitments and responsibilities, now would be a great time to get out of the office and enjoy what we expect to be a very informative and lively session.
